STATE CAPITOL NEWS

By MELVIN LORD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Aug 15 —(UP)— Theoretically, at least, local taxes should be reducted by 15 per cent as a result of the transfer of utility property to county and municipal rolls

Value of this property was fixed by the state board of equalization at $1,045,839,570. After adjustment, local tax rolls will show taxable property valued at $5,713,961,685. With utility property added, the tax rolls will show a total value of $6,614,797,120, or an increase of 15 per cent.

Value of utility properties as announced by the board has been questioned by owners and a series of board meetings still is in progress to permit owners of operative property to present arguments in favor of reduced assessments.

State officials are insisting that violations of state traffic laws be settled in court, and not by means of gold "courtesy" cards, minature highway patrol badges and similar devices. Backed by Gov. Merriam R. Ray Ingels, new director of the department of motor vehicles, ordered that no more courtesy cards be issued and that outstanding cards be confiscated. Ingel's first order on assuming office was designed to stop the indiscriminate use of state owned automobiles by calling in all cars and restricting their use to "official business only."

Agricultural officials have estimated California's 1935 cotton crop at 213,000 bales, or the equivalent of 460 pounds per harvested acre, the highest average yield in the United States. The nation's production was forecast at 11,798,000 bales as compared with 9,636,000 bales harvested last year.

With the deadline of August 20 near, after which state employes will be blanketed in under the new state civil service amendment, Gov Frank F. Merriam and other officials insist that there will be no whole sale dismissal of workers to make room for administration friends. After August 20 employes may be removed only for cause.

Facing a difficult financial situation, the state government benefitted from unexpectedly low bids for the manufacture of 1936 automobile license plates. The successful bid amounted to $172,261 for approximately 2,500,000 sets of plates, the lowest cost since 1927, according to A. E. Stockburger, director of finance, and approximately $70,000 under the price of the 1935 plates.

For the next three weeks, Los Angeles will be California's "summer capitol." Gov. Merriam left Sacramento for southern California where he will spend his vacation and, at the same time, take care of an accumulation of business that piled upduring the bill-signing period when the executive was virtually confined to his office here. The "vacation" will represent the longest period the governor has remained away from the capitol since his election.

VOTING LIGHT AT SPECIAL ELECTION

Local Voters Approve Proposition 1 and 3, Turn Down 2.

Proving again that it is personalities rather than issues that interest he American voter, only a small number of ballots were cast here Tuesday in the special election.

For the bill entitled "Legalizing State Building Bonds Act 1935," a total of 72 votes favored the proposition with but 32 against. This bill is designed to raise money by issuance of bonds to make needed repairs improvements, and additions to state hospitals, prisons, reformatories and other state owned property as well as provide revenue for he erection of further annexes to he State Capitol building.

The bill authorizing the state to borrow money within fifty per cent of its anticipated ravenue for the coming year was rejected in Truckee with a vote of 65 "no" to 33 "yes." This bill has been the target for much criticism during the time before the referendum and has been he subject for bitter debate in state financial circles.

Totaling 65 votes for, as against 5 votes against the Rector Dam project, providing for money to develop a water power system in Napa Valley and vicinity, was approved locally.

The heavy opposition from Southern California coupled with the extremely light vote elsewhere defeated the three propositions in the state.

NEW MINING LAW EFFECTIVE SEPT. 15

SACRAMENEO, Aug. 15 —(UP)— Persons locating mining claims in California will, in the future, have to go to work under terms of a new law effective September 15.

The law provides that proper markers must be erected on the claim and that a shaft 10 feet deep must be sunk, or a cut made exposing the deposit 10 feet below the surface within 90 days after the claim is located. The "location work" must be done also on relocations of old claims either by means of new work or deepening of old workings.

Proponents claim the law will curtail indiscriminate location and holding of numerous claims for speculative purposes.

Another agreement will allow the extension of the time for the building of a storage dam to beyond March, 1936, which was the date originally set for completion of construction work on the project.

The supplementary agreement will be submitted to Washington officials. It will then be submitted for approval to water users of the two irrigation districts on the river.

Those who attended the conference were representatives of the federal government, the Sierra Pacific Power Company and the Fallon and Washoe Irrigation Districts.

RED TAPE BLAMED FOR LYNCHING

Deplorable—another blot on the state's good name, was the view taken generally by California editors of the recent Yreka lynching.

But, while not condoning action of the mob, many editors believed the red tape of law enforcement was basically to blame.

"Deplorable as was the lynching at Yreka," said the Alameda Times Star, "it was no more disgraceful to the state of California than the fact that gunmen are running loose all over the state, in the metropolitan districts and the villages. Authorities seem unable to cope with this situation. There must be some remedy for this situation and if there is prompt steps should be taken to adopt it."

Back of the lynching, notes the Sacramento Bee, "is a condition that is even more deplorable—a conditior which not only incites such acts of mob violence, but makes them inevitable. This situation results from the frequent and notorious failure of the law itself to insure that justice shall be done red-handed killers. Not until trials become speedy and justice sure will that compulsion of outraged public sentiment which impels the citizenry to take the law into their own hands be removed."

"Lynching," comments the Imperial Valley Press, "being a violation of the law, must be condemned, yet in view of the laxness of law enforcement and the administration of justice, the wonder is not that we have lynchings but that we do not have more of them. Unlike most lynchings Yreka's was not inspired by radical hatred nor was it the result of a sudden mob impulse. Like the double lynching of two slayers in San Jose two years ago it is to be considered as the protest of otherwise law-abiding citizens at the futility of turning desperate criminals over to the courts for punishment and is an indictment of the law as well as a violation of it."

"The shooting of a peace officer," remarks the Stockton Record, "is a crime that naturally arouses resentment—as it should. But Johnson, the cold-blooded slayer in the Siskiyou case, was quickly apprehended and jailed. There was no reason to expect, in that rugged northern country of honest men and a stern sense of justice, Johnson would escape the punishment that was his due. But the mobsters would not wait. They took the law into their own hands. The Golden State has no reason to assume a holier-than-thou attitude toward 'less enlightened' parts of the country usually associated with lynchings."

"Lynch law is unjust," points out the Bakersfield Californian. "It makes mistakes that can never be corrected. It assumes guilt when that should be proved, and its record is that many innocent persons have suffered from it even if the guilty have met the fate they would have been sentenced to if properly tried in a court of law. Mob law is anarchy and would disrupt the just procedure of orderly life."

"Without commenting on the merits of the case," states the San Jose News, "or attempting to say whether lynching was justifiable or not, this event at Yreka will have a wholesome effect upon the way robbers and gangsters treat our officers of the law. We all remember the brutal murder of one of our finest policemen not long since in this city, and an occurrence like this in Yreka has a tendency to make such wanton slaying more unlikely and to make these gunmen more careful in their treatment of officers of the law."

A SOFTENED DISMISSAL

American business annually spends hundreds of thousands, perhaps millions of dollars for "good will" to solidify its position politically or socially. Associations, publicity men and paid lobbyists seek to protect the interests of big business, to fend off hostile legislation and public censure.

The Union Pacific Railroad through a relatively small outlay, evidently conceived from entirely humanitarian motives, has illustrated a different and probably more effective way in which business may entrench its position. This road, upon merging four of its subsidiaries, has given a full year's pay as dismissal wage to railway clerks displaced by the consolidation of headquarters. Reputedly this sum is the largest dismissal wage on record. Promise that these men would be re-employed if the opportunity arose accompanied the dismissal.

Moreover, special consideration was extended to those clerks transferred to the new central headquarters. The actual transfer was made at the expense of the company, which furthermore shouldered any loss the employees may have sustained in selling their homes in a hurry.

Capitalism is being challenged today mainly to demonstrate that its pursuit of profit is not inimical to the welfare and security of the masses. The action of the Union Pacific speaks well for the development of that social responsibility which industry must acquire if it is to meet the challenges of its critics. Furthermore, can any business ask for better ambassadors of good will than several hundred former employees who have been treated with generosity and consideration?

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 15—(UP)—Powers of Gov. Frank F. Merriam may be extended to the state board of equalization if recent rumors develop into actualities.

Friends of Orfa Jean Shontz, Los Angeles member of the board, have been urging her appointment to the municipal court in the southern metropolis. Should the governor name her to that post, he would also have to fill her position on the board, and he could place someone to fit his plans and meet the approval of his friends and supporters.

Agitation for the shifting of Miss Shontz comes from two sources: from her friends who realize she is in a tough spot and will encounter endless difficulties trying to enforce the liquor laws among more than half the state's population and particularly in the Los Angeles area where gambling and other behind-the-scenes interests swing significant power; from utility heads and business leaders who believe a man should be the board's chief in Southern California.

The second source of agitation fears that Miss Shontz may be too difficult to handle; that she may become a "menace" because of her previous indirect connection with the Epic forces and the fact that her's is a powerful position.

Already there are half a dozen candidates for Miss Shontz' position on the board. Among them are Edwin T. Keiser, former board executive in the Los Angeles area, and Assemblymen Harry B. Riley and C. Don Field. Riley, of Long Beach, was one of the most prominent members of the legislature during the recent prolonged session, and it would not be surprising to capitol observers if he were given the inside lane in in the race for the board vacancy, should Merriam appoint Miss Shontz to the judgeship.

Although Miss Shontz has indicated she had no intention of leaving the board, pressure by her friends and business interests and the lure of a $3,500 increase in salary may have some effect.

The governor has declined to comment, other than to say: "As strange things have happened in politics."

R. Ray Ingels, new director of the department of motor vehicles, lost no time changing some of the department practices when he moved into office.

On the first day, he took state automobiles away from department employes who were not using them solely in their work, and announced there would be no more joy riding in California-owned vehicles, so far as his division was concerned.

Next, ordered E. Raymond Cato, chief of the highway patrol, to discontinue issuing gold courtesy cards and other special favors to friends. All cards which are out are to be ignored by patrolmen and no more will be distributed.

Governor Merriam gave Ingals full power to run the motor vehicle department as he wished, and to make any changes he desired. Al-

TAHOE REGION NEWS

The Placer Union branch high school at Tahoe will open for school on Sept. 3rd, the day after Labor Day. Mrs. Bliss Hinkle, teacher, who recentlysuffered painful injuries when her car collided with the tender of the train's engine at a Tahoe crossing, is making satisfactory recovery and plans to continue her teaching. She passed several bad days last week in Hobart Mills hospital from an injection of anti-lockjaw serum. She will return to her Tahoe home some time this week.

Marshall Gordon of Sacramento who spent the week-end with his family in their home in Timberland Tract has returned home. His wife remained on indefinitely and is entertaining this week Mr. and Mrs. Bonnell Ferguson of Oakland. Other guests included Mrs. Marshall Raymond of Piedmont and her children Don and Marshall.

J. T. Clark of Sunnyside visited in San Francisco on business several days last week. His nephew David Farmer Jr., left San Francisco on Wednesday for the Boy Scouts Jamboree celebration. he will visit many of the nation's largest cities with the exception of Washington The trip was a gift from his uncle.

Mrs. Alice Wallman of Oakland left Tahoe on Monday having visited the home of her sister Mrs. H. D. Worden of Ward Creek Camp in Sunnyside.

Jeanette Sealine of Berkeley, Mr Worden's niece, is now their guest at Tahoe.

The gardens at Worden's during the past few weeks have been the object of much admiration and complimentary comment. Nearly every kind and color of bloom can be found in the brilliant hued gardens which surround the place. Another new cabin has also been added to the grounds this summer.

Considerable commotion was caused at the Tahoe Fish Hatchery camp grounds on Sunday when caretaker MacCampbell discovered a pitiful appearing little pup tied to a tree by means of barbed wire, without food or water. Constable Henry Wehrman and other town officials could not be reached and no humane officer is stationed here. So just when the problem seemed beyond solution several boys came up and claimed the dog, declaring they had gone on a horseback ride and didn't want the dog to run away or follow them.

Mrs. Edward Irvine and children of Sacramento was a recent visitor at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Pomin of Idlewild.

Sheriff Elmer Gum, Deputy Dist. Attorney C. C. Tindall and district Attorney Lowell Sparks were visitors at Tahoe Inn last week-end. Dist. Atty. Sparks declared that he had visited all gambling places at Tahoe in the county of Placer and instructed them to close at once and remain closed permanently. He avers no gambling will be permitted in Placer County as long as he remains in office. Neither E. H. Hunter of the Log Cabin in town or Messrs. Johnson or Harding of Homewood Clubhouse intend closing their establishments as rumored about town. Homewood club will still operate the bar and dance as usual for another two months although the parties on Monday nights will be discontinued. The Log Cabin will remain open for another month at least.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Poet of San Mateo accompanied by their daughter and her husband Mr. and Mrs. R. A. McLaren are enjoying a sojourn at their Tahoe home.

Duncan Pell Sr. is the houseguest of the Walker household over the week-end.

Mrs. Pell, mother of Mrs. T. Krutschnitt of the Nielsen cottage, returned to her San Francisco home after a visit at Tahoe with her daughter and family.

According to a report received here this week, which appears to be reliable, Tahoe's little furry residents, the chipmunks and squirrels, are about to become the objects of an extensive drive of extermination. For it is declared by research officials of the Goverment that these little animals who bring delight and amusement to hundreds of vacationists and homeowners at the lake during the year, are not really as harmless as they would appear, but in reality carry a tiny lice almost invisible to the eye, which afflict humans and cause distressing, although not serious illness. It seems a shame that these little fellows who seem a real part of Tahoe must be exterminated, but health must come above all else. Let's hope a few of them may be given a clean bill of health in order that they may not disappear from our environs altogether.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Prusso and children Theda, Don, Sherwood and Ray, departed from their attractive summer home on Ward Creek for their Seattle home, after a vacation visit of several weeks. Mr. Prusso, arrived at Reno airport by plane from the east, where he combined business with pleasure.

Their houseguests over the week-end were his parents and brother Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Prusso and son Seymour of San Leandro and Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Prusso and daughter Patsy Lou.

While here the boys indulged in a fishing trip up Ward Creek daily, catching the limit of trout a number of times. Barbecue dinners were enjoyed during their stay at the new barbecue pit installed in the gardens of their home along the creek last fall.

Dr. D. M. Coney of San Francisco, houseguest of J. T. Clark at his summer home Guth-A-Winga in the Sunnyside District, enjoyed a thrilling fishing trip to the Five Lakes region on Monday, engaging Bob Southers, veteran Tahoe guide and two of his horses for the day. Armed with the finest and most complete line of fishing equipment the doctor was up and gone at the crack of dawn. After a long ride through the mountains, which at times were nearly perpendicular, he eventually arrived and alighted, baited his hooks with precision, cast his line skillfully and waited with certain expectancy. But although the doctor is one of the most expert technicians on the fishing art ever to visit our fair shores, and knows intimately erery bay river and stream along the coast, the fish just failed to be impressed or imprisoned. Mumbling something about the lack of appreciation of Tahoe fish he returned after 9 that night leading his mount the last half of the journey a greatly disillusionized man with only a sample of fish for the special dinner his host had planned for him the next day. Mr. Clark suspecting that his friend might not be able to live up to his promises of plenty of fish had Charlie Swanson, his caretaker do a little private angling up Blackwood Creek, thereby supplying the necessary main trout course for their feast. When queried about his catch the doctor evasively told an incoherent story of how his fine mess of trout had slipped off, one by one while coming down the rough paths toward home, from the slim willow twig upon which he had strung them. Dr. Coney who was a frequent and interested visitor at the lake years ago when fishing was in it's prime, has about decided to stick to the same old batch of fish stories with which he has thrilled his audiences through these many years, rather than seek new testimonials as to his superlative skill as a fisherman.

Etta and Ted Marshall, proprietors of Marshall's Inn at Tahoe were found 'not guilty' of the three counts of selling liquor to an intoxicated person, to an Indian and to a minor in local justice court held in the Tahoe Women's club house on Friday. A jury of eight persons rendered the verdict, eight being stipulated instead of the customary twelve, by common consent. Deputy District Attorney C. C. Tindall of Auburn represented the State, and Lieutenant Albert Spitzen, CCC official and former New York lawyer, presented the case ably for the defendants. R. L. Joyner, local liquor enforcement officer, principle witness in the case, testified that the boys had been drinking, but that he had failed to see any drinks sold them. The three boys involved in the case were Frank Renna, Edmund Smith and Michael Sawka of the local CCC camp. A large crowd attended the trial which created considerable interest here.

You can drive it 50 miles an hour the day you buy it

THE FORD V-8 is ready for normal driving when you buy it. There is no tedious period of breaking-in for 500 or 1000 miles. You can drive it up to 50 miles an hour the first day. And after the first hundred miles you can drive it as fast as you desire.

That means greater motoring enjoyment for every motorist. It is especially important to motorists who are thinking about a new car for a vacation trip — to physicians, salesmen and all those who use a car for business. Instead of dragging along at slow speeds for days, you can make good time from the start.

The reason for this is as important as the result. The Ford V-8 needs no breaking-in because of unusual accuracy in the manufacture of moving parts and the smoothness of bearing surfaces. Clearances are correct when you buy the car. It is not necessary to depend on a long wearing-in period to eliminate tightness and insure smooth running. Longer life, greater economy and better performance are bound to result from such precision methods. The Ford V-8 gives you fine-car construction, along with fine-car performance, comfort, safety and beauty.

WPA PROJECTS TO EMPHIZE RURAL PHASE

The drive to employ the country's able workers on government jobs and to direct them into available private employment will not miss the country areas and small towns, Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator, said recently.

That there is urgent necessity to care for the Nation's rural and small town unemployed is shown by the fact that approximately 40 per cent of the 5,000,000 families on relief are to be found in the open country and towns under 5,000 in population, Mr. Hopkins said.

"The city used to be a giant magnet drawing unemployed labor from the country," Mr. Hopkins pointed out. "This is no longer true. For a while, after the beginning of the depression, the flow was reversed, going from city to country. Now even this movement has slowed down. Unemployed needy people are in both city and country."

"Work is largely the answer for both areas," he said.

This is borne out by the fact that, contrary to the general belief, a majority of the families on relief in the open country are those whose economic heads, whether men or women, are not farm operators. They comprise a group of workers who maintained themselves in the past by working at a great variety of trades and jobs.

"It is plain that the country and small town problem is not predominantly a farm-operator problem but essentially one of finding work for non agricultural workers, just as it is in the city," Mr. Hopkins declared.

"Plans are being made under the $4,000,000,000 Works Program to take care of the rural unemployed who were on relief rolls as of May, 1935," he continued. "One of the main features of this program will be an extensive secordary road-building program. A substantial sum will be spent by the Works Progress Administration for this purpose."

About two-thirds of the roads in the United States are not State highways subject to Federal funds. It is these roads which will come under the Works Progress Administration.

In addition to the secondary road program, other measures designed to alleviate the unemployment problem in the rural areas include the following:

Construction projects of various kinds, such as small dams, levee building, rebuilding streets, waterworks and sewage disposal, extension of lighting systems, community sanitation projects, recreational projects, stream pollution control, and sonitary surveys. The Resettlement Administration will also have a program for rural areas to aid farm families.

Mr. Hopkins pointed out that attempts were being made to provide employment for as many types of skills as possible.

"We have found that to meet the employment needs of the rural relief population," Mr. Hopkins said, "the Works Program must provide for a wide range of occupational skills. That is, we must as nearly as possible put people to doing the work they have been used to. This is important to keep human talent and abilities from deteriorating.

"When they get opportunities to resume private employment we don't want them demoralized from the dole. Our people don't want a handout, but something to help them hold their heads up. This is what the Works Program is attempting to do."

Figures from the research studies of the Wors Progress Administration show that there are nearly 2,100,000 rural and small town households receiving relief. Of this number, a total of 1,500,000 families, or 71 percent, were families with other than farm operator heads. This number includes farm labor families.

About 600,000 rouseholds, or 29 percent of the total, were families whose heads were classed as farm operators. Of this number, about 48 percent were tenant families, 38 percent were farm owners, and 14 percent were families of farm croppers living in the southern states.

The great majority of the 1,500,000 non farmer heads of rural and town households on relief are unskilled laborers. One-third of them are unskilled industrial laborers, while more than 350,000 are farm laborers. Another 350,000 are skilled and semi-skilled industrial workers. "White collar" workers, including professional, proprietary, and clerical workers, include 100,000 heads. There are 60,000 servants in the group.

Back-To-The-Farm Movement Gaining Favor

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 15 —(UP)— California is the scene of a definite back-to-the-farm movement, according to a summary if information revealed by the federal agricultural census and filed with the state department of agriculture.

During the period between 1930 and 1935, the number of farms in California increased from 135,676 to 150,360, a gain of 14,684.

Inasmuch as the increase in the actual farm acreage was not proportionate, officials believe that large holdings are being broken up into smalled farms so that the agricultural population is increasing rapidly.

Census figures show that the acreage increased from 20,442,581 to 30,519,194 during the five-year period under consideration.

The number of farms in Nevada county totaled 541 in 1935 and 539 in 1930, it was revealed.

Despite the fact Los Angeles county is considered a metropolitan area, it leads the state in the number of individual farms with a total of 13,549. Fresno is second with 10,539, and San Bernardino third with 7,904.

Due to economic conditions the value of California farm lands has not kept pace with the increase in the acreage. The census placed the value of farms, including land and buildings, at $2,329.050,986 at the beginning of 1935 as compared with a value of $3,419,470,764 in 1930.

Heavy Mackerel Catch Endangers Industry

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 15—(UP)— A warning that California's valuable mackerel industry is endangered by extremely heavy catches this year, has been issued by the state division of fish and game.

"The mackerel catch at San Pedro this year is running nearly three times that of last year," the division reported. "Inasmuch as the 1934 catch amounted to more than 100,000,000 pounds, the largest catch ever made on this continent, we should be worried about the future of this valuable fish in California waters.

"Mackerel are caught commercially by purse seines, ring nets and lamparas and by hook and line. The nets used are the same as those used for sardines. The over-development of sardine fishing equipment may be diststrout to the supply of mackerel as well as sardines."

The report pointed out that most of the canning of mackerel was being done at San Pedro because the fish are scarce at San Diego and Monterey.

NEW FEED LAW EFFECTIVE SEPT. 15

SACRAMENTO Aug. 15—(UP)— Regulation of the sale and manufacture of poultry and livestock feeding stuffs will be possible after September 15 when a new agricultural act becomes effective, according to state officials.

"Deception in the sale of feeding stuffs may be reduced materially through enforcement of the new provisions of the agricultural code," a department bulletin stated.

"Every person or concern selling or manufacturing commercial feed stuffs in California must register with the bureau of field crops and pay a $2 annual fee," the announcement said. "A tax of four cents a ton also is required on all rolled barley, ground grains, mill products, fish meal, beet pulp and other similar materials, all of which must be properly labeled as to ingredients and analysis."

Improvement in State Conditions Reflected

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 15 —(UP)— Three important factors—automobiles, real estate and building construction—indicate improved economic conditions in California, in the opinion of state officials as revealed in recent departmental reports to Gov. Frank F. Merriam.

An "exceptionally large increase" in the registration of motor vehicles during the first half of the year was reported by Russell Bevans, registrar of motor vehicles. Bevans said the increase over last year amounted to 113,464 automobiles.

Indicative of an increasing movement of real property, the state division of real estate revealed that 26,516 licenses have been issued to date this year, as compared with 25,710 last year. Income for the division increased from $105,186 to $107,904, the report stated.

For the fiscal year ending June 30, the contractor's license bureau reported a 13 per cent increase in registration, bringing the total of licensed contractors up to 23,952, as against 22,470 for the previous corresponding 12-month period.

"An increase in construction operations throughout the state is evident from reports of inspectors in the field and by the greater number of original applications for licenses," the bureau reported.

Christian Science

"Soul" will be the subject of the Lesson Sermon Sunday, August 18, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The Golden Text will be: "I will set my tabernacle among you: and my soul shall not abhor you. And I will walk among you, and will be your God, and ye shall be my people" (Lev. 26: 11, 12). Other Bible citations will include: "The sorrows of death compassed me and the pains of hell get hold upon me: I found trouble and sorrow. Then called I upon the name of the Lord; O Lord, I beseech thee, deliver my soul . . . The Lord preserveth the simple: I was brought low and he helped me. . . . For thou hast delivered my soul from death, mine eyes from tears, and my feet from falling" (Ps. 116: 3, 4, 6, 8).

The Lesson Sermon will also include the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "If it is true that man lives this fact can never change in Science to the opposite belief that man dies. Life is the law of Soul, even the law of the spirit of Truth and Soul is never without its representative. Man's individual being can no more die nor disappear in unconsciousness than can Soul, for both are immortal" (p.427).

The Beautiful Mosaic

SLOWLY and painstakingly the old Florentine mosaic maker placed the tiny pieces of glass in the hollow in the black marble. Before him was a picture of a great cathedral; and it was this picture which he was reproducing. Oblivious to all about him, the artist studied the details of his model. Now and then he surveyed the pieces of colored glass upon his table. Then, carefully selecting by color and texture, piece by piece, he fashioned and fitted the materials into place. Some of the pieces were so small that they were hair-like in size and delicacy. It was observed that he spent a great deal of time studying his model.

An interested watcher during one afternoon was told that it would require many months to complete the small piece of mosaic which was then being made, and another completed piece of work was displayed. The work was so well done that even with a strong magnifying glass it was almost impossible to see where the tiny bits were joined together. Into one harmonious whole the colors, the lights and shades, were blended, and the picture of a beautiful cathedral had been reproduced in glass.

The thinker will find herein a very inspiring and valuable lesson. It may be said that we are all fashioning our lives and experiences into some sort of a mosaic, and that each one is copying a model of his own choosing. No longer need thinkers believe that anyone is a helpless victim of circumstances. Instead, many are proving daily that human experiences may be made more beautiful and harmonious, and more free from discord, by diligent effort along right lines.

Christ Jesus gave all mankind the model by which to be guided in daily experience when he said, "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect" (Matthew 5:48). The perfection of the Father in heaven is never disputed, and through one's application to the study of the nature of this perfect Father one may learn to think more truly and to realize a greater sense of peace and harmony.

The teachings of Christian Science insist upon perfection as the goal of all endeavor. Mary Baker Eddy writes in the textbook of Christian Science, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" (p. 259), "The Christlike understanding of scientific being and divine healing includes a perfect Principle and idea, —perfect God and perfect man,—as the basis of thought and demonstration." Those who have accepted this statement, and have persistently worked from the standpoint it presents, have been healed physically, financially, morally, and have found their homes becoming more harmonious and their days more joy-filled.

Are we satisfied with anything which is imperfect in our activities, in our characters, in our experiences? If we are not, then it is comforting to realize that each one, if he desires, may improve that which is lacking in right results. Some need to be healed of sickness, some are experiencing limitation along different lines, some are lonely, and some would like to know how to be and to do good. Any inharmonious condition can be improved or healed by insisting upon perfection as the goal, and by persisting in efforts to reach that goal.

After the mosaic maker's careful and painstaking study of his model, he gave his attention only to the materials which had been placed upon his work table, and which he knew were sufficient to reproduce the beautiful picture. If he had looked out of the window at the broken glass and stones in the dirty street, and if he had thought of making mosaic with them, he might have been discouraged at the outset. But he was interested only in the proper materials for his work.

If we have perfection for our model, and if we are carefully and prayerfully depending upon our perfect Father in heaven for guidance, then we, too, are working only with correct materials and shall gain the desired results. Our Father has provided an abundance of right ideas with which we may work toward perfection, and these ideas include kindness, joy, consideration, patience, wisdom, and love. We need not allow our attention to be diverted to false beliefs, such as fear, hurry, irritation, impatience, apathy, idleness, any more than the mosaic maker allowed his gaze to wander to the common glass and stones in the street.

Nor can we forget the very tiny, sometimes hair-like pieces of glass which were fitted into the marble. Sometimes apparently trivial things need serious attention, but as our thought becomes habitually more considerate, more kind, less fearful, we shall realize that all our efforts will become wiser and more worthwhile. As unnecessary and undesirable experiences are eliminated, the joy of greater harmony becomes apparent, until, even as the picture grew under the hand of the artist, so the blending together of progressive experiences will bring to us and to others peace and harmony, joy and inspiration.—The Christian Science Monitor.

POLITICALLY SPEAKING

though both admitted some shifts would be made, they declined to be specific.

Rumor persisted that Cato and Russell Bevans, registrar, may feel the political axe before August 21. If undisturbed before then, they will be blanketed into civil service and permitted to settle down in lifetime jobs.

Controlled Ray L. Riley's challenge to the senate investigating committee may go unanswered. Senator Jerry Seawell said: "Riley can come before us if he wants to, but we probably won't subpena him." Riley indicated he would not go unless called. In that event, the latest flareup of the equalization board is likely to die a natural death and reputed sensational disclosures will remain in the rumor stage.

Intent upon undoing the changes maneuvered by Controller Ray L. Riley last January, the reorganized board of equalization, with Fred E. Stewart again riding the saddle of control, has started demoting Riley followers and returning those who were moved by the controller.

Acting without advance notice and after Riley had left a night meeting, the board:

Demoted A. H. Flickinger, chief beverage control administrator, to the rank of grade 2 supervising auditor.

Reduced D. L. R. Pratt, chief auditor, to grade 2 auditor.

Dropped Frank M. Keesling, chief sales tax counsel, to the rank of an attorney in the utilities valuation division.

Restored the salary of Dixwell L. Pierce, board secretary, to $6,600 annually. He had been cut to $5,000 on Riley's order.

Next in line for a change, observers predicted, was Elwood Squires, former assistant secretary whose job was abolished by Riley. Squires now is liquor administrator for the Sacramento area, but probably will return to his old post which paid a higher salary.

There were other changes in the air, but no dismissals were contemplated, according to Chairman Richard E. Collins.

When the board voted to restore Pierce's former salary, it failed to reckon with Finance Director A. E. Stockburger, who must pass on the increase. Since Stockburger, following Governor Merriam's orders, has not approved any increases over $5,000, it was doubtful whether he would agree to this one.

Similarly, Stockburger must pass upon a contract the board entered into with Clem Whitaker to handle policy publicity for $200 a month. Whitaker's connection with the board was severed by the Riley regime but reestablished when the recent upheaval returned the power to Stewart.

First prominent person in the department of motor vehicles to feel political axe descend before erection of the civil service protection barrier was genial John A. McGilvray, chief of the bureau of dirvers licenses. He was removed by Ray Ingels, new director of the department, only 10 days before he would have been blanketed into civil service. No reason was given for the dismissal.

McGilvray's ouster surprised capital observers because he was a close friend of Governor Richardson, who in turn is a political henchman of Governor Merriam. He served as chief of the legislative counsel bureau and later as head of the industrial accident commission under Richardson, and was appointed to the motor vehicle post by the late Gov. James Rolph, Jr.

McGilvray's removal seemed to make the jobs of E. Raymond Cato and Russell Bevans a bit more secure, since according to rumor there would be "one or two" changes in the department and one already has occurred. Friends of Cato and Bevans continued to be anxious, however.

Controller Riley was the only state official who voiced opposition to proposition No. 2 on the special ballot August 13. This measure, to permit state borrowing on a short term basis, would, Riley complained, permit the state to pyramid its debt by borrowing on anticipated revenues and paying off only 50 per cent.

Considerable opposition has developed in outside circles to the $13,950,000 bond issue for institutional improvement, on the ground that the state already is in debt $30,000,000 and that taxes are soaring. Major argument in favor of the issue is that state hospitals are seriously overcrowded and in dire need of immediate improvements.

Agitation for a change in functions of the state board of equalization has grown steadily during the past several months and may result in action during the next legislative session. Sentiment in favor of a seperate board to control liquor has been developing since the board began encountering difficulties in liquor enforcement.

Many legislators and other officials believe the equalization board should confine its activies to tax matters. Since the sales tax became effective two years ago and prohibition was repealed, the board has become one of the most powerful agencies in the state.

INCREASED INTEREST SHOWN IN BOXING

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 15—(UP)—Popularity of wrestling and boxing shows continues to increase in California, according to a report of the state athletic commission.

The state's share of 5 per cent of the gate receipts amounted to $59,431 for the first six months of the year, as compared with $52,065 in the first half of 1934, the commission reported.

Attendance increased from 209,549 in June 1934., to 218,667 in June, 1935, despite a decrease in the total number of boxing and wrestling shows.

Failure of Bond Issue Means More Camps

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 15—(UP)—Defeat of the $13,950,000 bond issue in the August 13 special election probably would necessitate the extension of prison road camps throughout California, Earl Lee Kelly, director of public works, said today.

Already, the highway division is enlarging prison camps to handle word work in some sections because a lowered budget will make it impossible to complete certain projects without using more prison and less free labor.

If the bond issue should fail, contemplated improvement and enlargement of penal institutions and construction of a new penitentiary in Southern California would face postponement. In order to relieve pressure in San Quentin and Folsom prisons, it would be necessary to establish new prison camps, officials believed.

These camps probably would be placed in isolated areas and the convicts would work on the improvement of roads which otherwise may receive little attention during the next few years.

The department is making no plans concerning convict labor until after the special election.
